I'm literally discussed at the proposal of a building that will be pouring toxins into the atmosphere where residents live.

I work at a gp surgery that is not to far from the planed site,which again is somewhat mind blowing to why this particular site has been chosen,I have a few thoughts of my own on this which many others feel the same.we wonder if the investors lived within half a mile of this project it would still be going ahead we think not There is plenty of land no where near residential areas that can be used but, as this will surely bring down the price of there land as no one's going to buy land to build homes nexd to a smelly environmentally unfriendly monstrosity.But they think it's ok to expect the people of haverhill to just sit bk and expect this it's unbelievable.

This really can not go ahead

Kind regards
B Brown
